Imported Danish Havarti

Native to Denmark, Arla's imported Danish Havarti bears the distinguished EU Protected Geographical Indication (PGI) status. It is a mild, aromatic cow's milk cheese with a hint of tanginess. Soft and creamy, its taste develops more character as it matures. Havarti flavored variants are infused with herbs and spices, elevating snacking and cooking experiences.

In October 2019, the EU granted exclusive Protected Geographical Indication (PGI) rights to Denmark for Havarti cheese production. In order to have PGI status, Havarti cheese must be produced from Danish milk at approved dairies.

Domestic Edam

Arla's domestic Edam cheese is pleasantly mild and creamy with a slightly nutty, buttery flavor. This cow's milk cheese has relatively low-fat content, giving it a softer texture than many other kinds of cheese. As Edam ages, its flavor becomes a bit sharper, and its texture becomes firmer.

Imported White Mold

Arla's imported soft white mold cheeses are made with cow's milk. The Brie has a mild, slightly tangy and aromatic taste complemented by a creamy and smooth consistency. The Camembert has a well-rounded and slightly tangy taste with an earthy undertone, a soft rind, and a smooth texture. Production involves adding a white mold culture to the curd, causing a white bloom to grow on the surface. The cheese then matures for 21 days.

Danish Butter

Our Danish Butter is produced according to the toughest standards of quality, which are never compromised. Lactic butter has quite a different taste to cream butter with lactic offering a full, tangy flavor in comparison to sweeter, flatter cream butter. It also has a characteristic low moisture content and tangy flavor that most find preferable to sweet cream butter.
